Fifth avenue, where its promoter, Miss Janet C. Lewis, has her office and receives subscriptions for stock in it. Just where this future home of a vast number of women will be situated is not yet decided, but its location will probably he between Thirtieth and Forty-second streets and near Madison

A desirable site was secured some time ago, but its owner died before arrangements for it were completed, and negotiations with his heirs were not continued. The plans, which have been prepared by Messrs. Lamb & Rich, may have to be modified to suit the new site-in fact, it is about decided to add one or two more floors to the building, making it nine or ten stories high. Russian, Roman and Turkish baths, a plunge, manicure, hairdressing and chiropodist pariors will be situated in the basement. On the ground floor will be an assembly room, committee room, reading room, library, reception, club, cloak and lunch rooms. The other floors will contain studios and apartments of from one to three rooms. The restaurant and kitchen, according to the old plans, were to have been situated on the eighth floor, but will now probably be located nearer the roof. The rooms will be rented by the year, and it is expected that most of the women will provide their own furniture. The tenants will be well-to-do women, who want a pleasant home at the least possible cost. About $10 per week will gover the expenses of a room and board for one person. No rules will govexrn the tenants, who will be allowed every liberty, even to the extent of lasving canary birds and sewing ma chines.
